

Jazon is a sweet and silly eight-year-old boy with blonde hair and big blue eyes. He has a wonderful personality and can be very engaging when talking about topics that he is interested in, such as video games and toys. Jazon enjoys laughing and seeing other people laugh. He is very loving and affectionate in an appropriate manner. He is sure to ask someone if he could hug them or kiss them on the cheek before doing so. Jazon can be difficult to understand at times but has made tremendous progress with his speech. He is not adventurous when it comes to food and would prefer to eat peanut butter at every meal if he could. His current foster family describes him as kind and good-natured. He has so much love to give. He enjoys playing Minecraft and Super Mario games.

Jazon has been diagnosed with an intellectual developmental disability because he is very behind. Jazon is currently learning how to form sentences when talking as well as recognizing letters. He is not currently potty trained, and wears pull ups at home. He is doing better and knows how to use the potty but must be reminded to go to the bathroom. Jazon currently sees a psychiatrist and is on daily medication to support his mood. Jazon is making more progress than we once thought was possible.
